those strategies creatively as advertising ideas and messages that are compelling, interesting and persuasive. By the end of the course you should have greater knowledge and more skills in a number of areas that will be useful to you not only as a copywriter or art director, but also as an account manager, media buyer, or media sales representative.

Course Format

Regardless of the area of advertising you choose as a career, an understanding of the role of creative strategy in advertising is essential. In addition, there are certain skills that will improve your ability to not only create good advertising, but to work with creatives and evaluate creative executions. This course uses class meeting times to work on these skills.

NOTE: This course requires extensive time and effort outside of the classroom. On average, you should plan on at least 10 hours per week.

Requirements & Grading

Course grades are assigned using the University of North Carolina Grading System.

There are no formal exams in this course.

Grades are determined by class participation and performance on various assignments. Grading criteria vary by assignment. Assignments contribute to your final grade as follows:

- 10% - Research (group) Assignment
- 10% - Strategy Assignment
- 10% - Headline Assignment
- 10% - Copy Assignment

Attendance & Participation

Regular class attendance is a student obligation, and a student is responsible for all the work, including tests and written work, of all class meetings. This course operates under the University of North Carolina Class Attendance Policy.

Students are expected to actively participate in class discussions by sharing observations, insights and questions with the instructor and members of the class. Discussion will allow each student to benefit from all the other students' insights and to work toward a final interpretation or understanding that may differ from the one he or she reached individually. This requires that assigned
