About this class

Welcome to News Editing. In this course, you will learn the fundamentals of editing for print and digital media. We'll talk about the little stuff such as commas and the big stuff such as what goes on the front page of a newspaper and what photo to run as our website's centerpiece. You will learn how to edit news stories and how to write photo captions, tweets and headlines. We'll do a bit of print design, too. You'll become an expert in AP style and gain an appreciation for accuracy of information and fairness in language for print and digital media. The goal is to help you become a better communicator, for your career and for your life.

REQUIRED TEXTS: Working With Words, Eighth Edition. The Associated Press Stylebook, 2014 edition. Stylebook of the School of Journalism and Mass Communication (available online at jomc.unc.edu/stylebook).

If you don't already have one, you will also be required to create a professional Twitter account that you will use to follow media news. We'll discuss this more during our first class meetings.

RECOMMENDED TEXTS: Editors know what's in the news. A great way to keep up with a wide variety of news sources is to follow their accounts on Twitter.

You should read a daily newspaper (either in print or online) such as The News & Observer, The New York Times or the Herald-Sun as well as The Daily Tar Heel. You should also read sources that keep tabs on the media industry, like Poynter, Jim Romanesko, Nieman Lab or the Columbia Journalism Review.

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY: You must adhere to the University's honor code. Some assignments will be collaborative, but in general, there should be no sharing of information while you are working on assignments.

ATTENDANCE: It's crucial. So is punctuality. If you're going to miss class or are running late, let me know.

If you miss an assignment because you are late, you may not make it up. If you miss class, you may make up assignments only if you provide documentation of illness or other cause for your absence. If you cannot attend class because of a University-related trip, please let me know ahead of time so we can make arrangements. If you have an ongoing situation that could affect your attendance, let me know as soon as possible.

ETIQUETTE: Be ready to participate in class discussions and class exercises. Please turn off ringers on cell phones at the start of class. Please refrain from texting, tweeting and checking email and Facebook during class. You may leave the room to take a break at any time; as a class, we'll also take a few minutes off midway through many class meetings.

ASSIGNMENTS: Most of the work in this class will be what you would do at a news organization: editing stories, writing headlines, etc. You will also take a series of quizzes on AP style, current events and names in the news.

You have two out-of-class assignments: leading the class in a Twitter news briefing and critiquing a daily newspaper's website and print product. The Twitter briefings will be done individually. You will work in small groups for the newspaper critique.

GRADING: Your assignments will be graded on a point system. The more important the assignment, the more it's worth. For example, an AP style quiz is worth 50 points. The final exam will be worth 200 points. In the end, I will divide the number of points you earned by the total possible points (typically about 1,600) and use the following scale to calculate your grade:

90-100: A
80-89: B
70-79: C
60-69: D
59 or less: F

EXTRA CREDIT: You can get extra credit by bringing in an error in a print publication and explaining how you would repair it. To cash in on this offer, turn in the error with a brief written explanation. Describe the mistake and how you would fix it. Examples of errors: a misspelled headline, a math error, a misplaced comma or bad word choice.

You may get extra credit for up to four such mistakes. Each one is worth five points. I may ask you to share some of your more interesting finds with the rest of the class. Professionally produced print publications such as daily newspapers, magazines, menus, textbooks are fair game. So is this syllabus. Student publications, fliers stuck on telephone poles and online media are not. I am the final arbiter of what counts and what doesn't.

About your instructor

PROFESSIONAL BACKGROUND: I started working in journalism when I was 15, doing a little bit of everything at my (tiny) hometown newspaper. I decided to go to UNC for two reasons: I loved journalism, and I loved basketball.

During my undergrad years at UNC, I worked as the copy desk co-chief at the Daily Tar Heel and as a sports reporter at Reese News, back when it was still a newsroom. I also interned on the copy desks of The New York Times and the Dallas Morning News, and I started working on the copy desk of the Charlotte Observer after graduation.

Then I switched to reporting. I was the education reporter for the StarNews in Wilmington for almost three years, writing about two public school districts, a university and a community college.

TEACHING PHILOSOPHY: Becoming a good editor will make you a better storyteller, writer and reporter and, most importantly, a better thinker. I'm here to help you understand all aspects of editing, the small details and the bigger picture.

I also want to help you professionally. Come to me with questions about internships or careers, requests to read over resumes or cover letters or for general advice on all things journalism.

Guidelines for grading your story editing

Misspelled proper name: -50

Missing first reference: -15

Other fact error: -25

Misspelled word: -10

Style error: -5

Garble: -5

Punctuation error: -3 to -5

Grammar error: -5

Redundancy: -5

Other offense: -3 to -25

Point bonuses

On some assignments, you can get points by performing heroic acts of editing. These may include breaking a long sentence into two sentences, tightening wordy copy and improving the structure of a story.

Guidelines for grading your headlines and captions

Headlines and captions are worth 25 points each. Here's how the grading works:

25: Shows unusual flair and cleverness. Represents the story or photo clearly and forcefully. A caption or headline that's truly exemplary.

23: Solid and publishable. Reflects the story or photo and attracts reader interest.

21: Usable but lacks precision and action.

18: Vague or difficult to understand, or has structural problems that hinder comprehension.

15: Contains a major flaw. Fails to use key words that reflect the news or misses the major angle of the story. Contains a punctuation error, such as use of a semicolon where a comma is needed. Has unintended double meanings.

0: Contains an obvious grammar error, such as subject-verb disagreement. Has a misspelled name, fact error or libelous content.
