Materials

The required textbook for this course is Advertising media planning: a brand management approach by Larry D. Kelley, Donald W. Jugenheimer and Kim Bartel Sheehan. It is available through the UNC library as a FREE, downloadable PDF:

<http://libproxy.lib.unc.edu/login?url=http://www.tandfebooks.com/isbn/9781315720579>

Additional readings will be provided by the instructor.

We will use spreadsheets (Excel is preferred) extensively in this course. You will need to bring your laptop computer to each class meeting.

Objectives

Upon completion of this course, you should:

- be able to not only define basic media concepts such as CPM, reach, frequency, coverage, etc., but understand and apply them to specific media planning/buying situations;
- be able to compute all major media planning/buying formulas by hand;
- understand the role of computers in media planning/buying and be able to use computer software to analyze and solve media problems;
- understand the relationship and importance of media planning/buying to marketing and advertising;
- be knowledgeable of current issues in media;
- be able to analyze a marketing situation, apply creative problem solving, and develop effective media strategies;
- be able to write articulate, integrated media objectives and strategies, and use these objectives/strategies to develop media tactics;
- understand the career opportunities available in media planning/buying;

Requirements & Grading

All grades are assigned using the 4-point grading scale (A = 4.0, B = 3.0, etc.) and grade definitions of the University of North Carolina Grading System. For individual assignments, percentage correct is the basis for grades. Percentage correct translates to a letter grade based on the following:

Minimum Score	Letter Grade	Minimum Score	Letter Grade
93.0%	A	77.0%	C+
90.0%	A-	73.0%	C
87.0%	B+	70.0%	C-
83.0%	B	67.0%	D+
80.0%	B-	60.0%	D

NOTE: Percentage score of less than 60.0% = F

See Sakai course site for schedule of assignments and readings.

Grading criteria vary by assignment. Assignments contribute to your final grade as follows:

- 5% - Current Events / Trends presentation
- 20% - Exam 1 (tentatively scheduled for Wednesday, September 25, 2019)
- 25% - Exam 2 (tentatively scheduled for Wednesday, November 6, 2019)

20% - Homework / In-Class Quizzes Exercises

30% - Group Project: Teams will develop a complete media plan & recorded presentation. This project serves in lieu of a traditional final exam and includes a peer evaluation. Project is due on the last day of class at 5:00 p.m. (Wednesday, December 4).

From the Registrar: “For a three-credit-hour course, the University has a required three-hour final examination period, which incorporates 180 minutes of required instruction in each semester. Thus, the University requires instructors to provide a full three hours of instruction for final assessment purposes (e.g., written final examination, presentations, portfolio review, performance, review and evaluation, or some combination of these assessments). It is up to the discretion of the instructor of record to determine the form, content, and function of the final examination period.”

The final exam period for this course is Friday, December 13, 2019 (noon – 3 p.m.). Since the group project serves as the final exam, that time period will be used to review/critique the projects. Attendance is mandatory.

There are no extra credit projects available in this course. Exams are cumulative, closed-book, and closed-notes.

Course Format

This is a course in which you should not only understand the subject matter, but you should be able to apply it in a variety of situations. From the beginning, the material builds on itself to form a comprehensive body of media planning/buying knowledge. Therefore, the course will be taught using a problem-solving approach.

This approach works as follows for any given class meeting:

- Readings and/or homework are assigned before each class meeting. It is your responsibility to not only read but to study/understand the reading.
- In class, I will assume that you have read the assigned material and are ready to discuss, question, expand on and apply the material.
- If applicable, we will discuss the homework assignment for the day.
- There may be a quiz based on the homework or readings.
- A specific topic from the readings is introduced. This introduction may be a very brief summary or an extended lecture/exercise depending on the particular topic.
- In-class exercises and/or quizzes are used to help you understand how to apply the material.

NOTE: This course requires extensive time and effort outside of the classroom. On average, you should plan on a minimum of 6-10 hours per week.

Attendance & Participation

This course operates under the University of North Carolina Class Attendance Policy. Regular class attendance is a student obligation, and a student is responsible for all the work, including tests and written work, of all class meetings. Make-up opportunities for exams are only available for University excused absences. Note that there is no opportunity to make up homework, quizzes, or in-class exercises for any reason; however, if due to a University excused absence, missing the assignment will not count against your grade.

Students are expected to actively participate in class discussions by sharing observations, insights and questions with the instructor and members of the class. Discussion will allow each student to benefit from all the other students' insights and to work toward a final interpretation or understanding that may differ from the one he or she reached individually. This requires that assigned readings and/or homework exercises be completed prior to arrival to class.

Students are responsible for regular and punctual class attendance and should be in their seats before the start of class. Students arriving more than 10 minutes late for class will be considered absent.

Academic Integrity & Counseling

This course operates under the Honor System of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Plagiarism and other forms of academic dishonesty will not be tolerated in this course, and disciplinary actions will be enforced in any instance of academic dishonesty including, but not limited to, cheating, plagiarism, collusion or the abuse of materials. If you have a question about academic dishonesty, it is better to ask than to risk the consequences.

Unless otherwise directed, students should complete all graded academic work in this course on their own, without collaboration, and include a signed honor pledge when it is turned in to the instructor.

If you need individual assistance, it's your responsibility to meet with the instructor. If you are serious about wanting to improve your performance in the course, the time to seek help is as soon as you are aware of the problem – whether the problem is difficulty with course material, a disability, or an illness.

The University's policy on Prohibiting Harassment and Discrimination is outlined in the 2018-2019 Catalog. UNC is committed to providing an inclusive and welcoming environment for all members of our community and does not discriminate in offering access to its educational programs and activities on the basis of age, gender, race, color, national origin, religion, creed, disability, veteran's status, sexual orientation, gender identity, or gender expression. If you require special accommodations to attend or participate in this course, please let the instructor know as soon as possible. If you need information about disabilities visit the Department of Disability Services website.

Diversity

UNC is committed to providing an inclusive and welcoming environment for all members of our community and does not discriminate in offering access to its educational programs and activities based on age, gender, race, color, national origin, religion, creed, disability, veteran's status, sexual orientation, gender identity, or gender expression.
